THE COUNTY CANVASS.

Two tickets for county officers are in the field and the canvass is progressing without bitter feeling or slander. We much prefer that it should be so. Each candidate must stand upon his own merits, and his success will be attributed to that alone. There are no particular local questions involved of any importance that enter the canvass that we are aware of. Party considerations are not deemed important, and we do not believe they will be strictly followed. No issue is presented for us to combat, and we have none to make. We trust the canvass will be carried on in the same generous spirit that prevails now; and let the contest be narrowed to the limits of decency and good order. Once let it be said that a political contest has occurred in Ford county without the use of personalities and bitter strife and slanderous stories. A canvass conducted in good manner will tend to allay feelings of animosity in the future; and will reconcile all factious opposition. It is the intention of the Peoples' candidates to act squarely during the canvass. As this spirit is already shown by the opposition, we trust it may continue to grow in fraternity and good feeling.

GEO. B. COX ACCEPTS.

The nomination for Representative of Ford county having been tendered to Geo. B. Cox, he replies by telegram as follows:
LAWRENCE STATION, N. J., Oct. 26.

A. H. BOYD, Dodge City, Kas:

Will accept nomination; but won't possibly be there until 10th to 20th prox.

GEO. B. COX.

WOMEN IN THE CATTLE TRADE.

Some weeks since we noticed the appearance at Giesselein farm of a lady pig-buyer. And now comes one with a smack more of romance, for she is a veritable cattle dealer and herder of cattle in Colorado. The heroine was a visitor at the Chicago stock-yards recently. She informed the reporter of the Drover that she taught school in winter and tended her cattle in summer. She had thus become wealthy and healthy. She had concluded that the cattle ranches in Colorado had been overstocked, and she was about to move further on for pastures green, and will locate in Wyoming. This lady's name is Miss Sarah E. Eddy, and she is not the only one of her sex who dares to be independent. As her business had excited a little interest among some Western papers, she thus explains how and why she became a herder of cattle:

"I would like to explain why I am herding. Last spring, after my school had closed, I was examined by the County Superintendent and marked 'A.' My parents desired me to teach in our own district, that I might be at home, and I accordingly applied for the school. The director gave me every encouragement, and I was given to understand that if not underbid I should be employed. There were two applications for the position, myself and another lady, until a person in the form of a man applied and secured the school. Being out of employment and my parents in limited circumstances, I concluded to herd cattle, that being the best situation offered me. I have a herd of ninety cattle, and am receiving $18 per month. My father takes my place with the herd Sundays and rainy days. My sister assists me with the herd, so that I have company the greater part of the time."

This tells the story of how "a person in the form of a man" underbid the young lady teacher and how she heroically took to the plains. Success to her. It is safe to affirm that she was a better teacher than the male; that she had independence of character and filial piety, the piety which Virgil makes the chief excellence of his hero of the Trojan war.

THE PEOPLES' TICKET.

GEO. B. COX has formally accepted the nomination as candidate for Representative. Mr. Cox is the senior proprietor of the Dodge House, and has been a resident of Ford County a number of years. He is well and favorably known in this section of country. He is an honest man, and should be elected he will discharge the duties of the office with a view to the best interests of Ford county.

T. S. JONES, candidate for County Attorney, is an old resident of Kansas, and his genial manners has made him a host of friends in Ford County. He is a good lawyer and well qualified for the position of County Attorney. We have no doubt he will discharge the duties of that office with credit to himself and constituents.

N. B. KLAINE is the candidate for re-election to the office of Probate Judge. He has nothing to say in justice to his own cause. His candidacy is not of his own seeking. If re-elected, he will continue to discharge the duties of the office with the same strict attention and satisfaction.

H. MCGARRY, candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, is the Principal of the Dodge City Public Schools. Prof. McGarry is an experienced teacher and well qualified for the office. He will make an excellent officer and discharge his duties with ability and impartiality.

E. D. SWAN, candidate for Clerk of the District Court, does not seek the office, but he is capable and will make a good officer. We do not believe a better selection could have been made. Mr. Swan is a lawyer and a farmer by profession.

WM. HEADY, the candidate for County Surveyor is a farmer and resident of the east end of the county. He has the ability to straighten out the defective surveys in Ford County—and we hope he will be able to do it.

A. J. ANTHONY is the candidate for County Commissioner. He has held the position before. He is a well known citizen with a reputation for honesty.

The Peoples' ticket is a good one. It has elements of success and we believe it is bound to win.

LOOK OUT FOR A COLD WINTER.

We report, that we have once or twice referred to, that there are signs abroad of a severe and cold winter, and perhaps one exceptional in that line. These signs are a drouth of long continuance, which has been no more than partially broken, and which if it were would not amount to that saturation of the soil, down to the lowest springs, and that flooding of the surface of thousands and thousands of square miles which makes a mild open winter possible. The thickness of corn husks, the Northern flight of wild fowl, the building of the beaver and muskrat, are little to be counted upon in forecasting the winter season, in comparison with the simple facts that millions of square miles of surface half covered and fully saturated with warmish water, so heats all their surroundings that cold weather is impossible. In view of the great likelihood of a cold winter, we advise the readers of the South and West to be prepared in time for it, provide shelter for their cattle, and especially see to the condition of their cellars, which are penetrated by frost a great deal farther after a long, dry summer and autumn, than after a season in which the earth has been saturated with rain. However, if the remainder of October and November should be warm and very wet, it is probable that the rigor of the winter may be less, or even mild and moderate, like '77, '78, '79, '80.—South and West.

The weather is fine for the candidates and they are making good use of the opportunity afforded.
